CONNECT: CLUES AND CUES FOR ENGAGED INTERACTION

Interactive classroom discussion, engaged presentation, full attention, and thoughtful interpretation of content are at the heart of this classroom session. Our distracted, fast paced world of data, online presentation, sound bites and glut of visual information has left many students unable to “talk like a human” and “act like a real person”. This participatory workshop focuses on live communication skills, student-led conversations, reading nonverbal signals, and picking up auditory cues to bring science, history, and the arts to life. It can also include listening, interviewing, protocols, and appropriate behavior in a range of social situations, based on students’ and teachers’ needs. Coach Karen Mauro shares practical tools with student and staff.
